

Seven years ago, Angie Langford snapped a picture of an old barn that ignited her passion for photography and changed the course of her life. That image was the catalyst that moved her to learn and study all she could about photography, giving her the skills to take professional photos of friends, which then lead to referrals. Soon, the passion became a dream which has evolved into Verb Photography.

Photography has not only been a creative outlet for Angie, but it has also been a source of comfort during her greatest sorrow as she mourned the loss of a loved one. Yet despite the grief, it still allowed her to maintain a connection with that loss. Through this passion, Angie has had the opportunity to develop relationships in the Edmonds community which she loves, most specifically, the EMoms community to which she belongs. Emoms is a network of 5,000+ women supporting each other personally and in business and is responsible for much of the growth of Angie's business – and no doubt that of other entrepreneurial women.

These women recognize their role in the family as memory keepers and have stepped forward and utilized Angie's skills in capturing the precious moments of their families' lives. Angie's passion not only for photography but for her community, has continued to grow her small business, which started so many years ago, with a humble picture of an old barn.

If you would like to have Angie capture the next family wedding, newborn photos or other exciting family memory, update your professional headshot, or update the photos on your website or brochures, please call her at 425-773-0415, email at angie.langford7530@gmail.com or check out her Facebook page, Verb Photography by Angie Langford by visiting this shortened URL: bit.ly/1LjTCJf.
